

March 2020

Welcome to the latest newsletter from angel.london

With health and safety making headlines around the world, in this newsletter we offer essential practical advice and support for our businesses covering both coronavirus and security training.

Elsewhere, on a brighter note, we are delighted to announce a fun opportunity for all employees in the Angel. The new Crafts Council Gallery, located on Pentonville Road, is set to open at the end of March and we have partnered with the Crafts Council to host an exclusive pre-opening preview event on Friday 27 March for all those who work in the area.

Details of the event and how to register for a free ticket are given below. Please circulate to your co-workers or staff to ensure they have the opportunity to attend this exciting event.

With best wishes for the month ahead.

BRIGHTER: Invitation to pre-opening event at the new Crafts Council Gallery - Friday 27 March

The new Crafts Council Gallery is set to open to the public at the end of March on Pentonville Road. The Gallery will be a 'home for craft' and showcase objects from their national collection alongside special exhibitions.

We are delighted to have partnered with the Crafts Council to give all workers in the Angel an exclusive pre-opening preview of the Gallery on Friday 27 March between 11.30am and 2.30pm. There will be free drinks and nibbles on offer too, so why not spread the word and come and have a 'crafty' lunch break? Entry to the preview is free of charge, but we ask that attendees book via the button below.

SAFER: Resources for businesses on coronavirus and other germs

Much has been said about how to stop the spread of germs, particularly at this time in the face of the coronavirus outbreak.

The NHS has produced two posters that businesses can download and display in your premises or distribute to staff.
